Dear Members & Friends

The year 2000 is moving by with the speed of lightening, (or I'm getting slower every year). March is almost over and soon we'll be out mowing yards, gardening and of course, cemetery hunting. I think the cemetery is one of the greatest resources in doing genealogy research. The old country cemeteries are also one of our fastest disappearing landmarks. Too many people are destroying them or they are being neglected and left to deteriorate.

The demise of the small rural cemeteries is an area that we as family history researchers need to take a more active part in preserving. There are several ways we can become directly or indirectly involved in saving these old cemeteries. Money always helps and of course, labor. There are publications on "how to" preserve gravestones and many resource people to give seminars or workshops on cemetery preservation. As we have in Davis County, volunteers can go to the cemeteries and record the burials. This information can then be published and put in your genealogy libraries. In Davis County we have done several townships and continue to update and publish the townships as we complete them. Our cemeteries were part of the WPA Graves Registration project of the 1930's, in the 1970's volunteers from our society again walked the cemeteries and in the 1990's we started updating the burial information in the cemeteries.

Many times the deaths you are looking for will show up in a cemetery listing and nowhere else. Newspapers and death records in courthouses may not have existed when your relative died. That leaves the gravestone as your only primary resource as to birth and death dates. Doesn't that give you the urge to help protect those small rural cemeteries?

I'm sure if you want more information on preserving cemeteries or resource people you can contact your state genealogy society and they will be able to answer your questions.

Thanks for listening and happy cemetery hunting
